A trio of major players in the battery storage system integration space have unveiled recent Large-Scale Fire Testing (LSFT) results. Hithium, Canadian Solar, and Fluence have all announced the latest LSFT procedures carried out on their battery energy storage system (BESS) equipment. Each reported.

A trio of prominent players in the battery energy storage system (BESS) integration sector—Hithium, Canadian Solar, and Fluence—recently shared the results of their Large-Scale Fire Testing (LSFT). Each company reported that their tested units did not allow fire to spread to neighboring units, even.

Company e-STORAGE Read more e-STORAGE, a subsidiary of Canadian Solar, is a world-class energy storage solution provider, specializing in storage system design, manufacturing, and integration of battery energy storage systems for utility-scale applications. The company offers value-added system. Which battery energy system storage providers have successful fire testing?

Two more battery energy system storage (BESS) providers, including a manufacturer, have detailed successful fire testing.

How many GWh of battery energy storage solutions has Canadian Solar shipped?

Through its subsidiary e-STORAGE, Canadian Solar has shipped over 11 GWh of battery energy storage solutions to global markets as of March 31, 2025, boasting a $3.2 billion contracted backlog as of March 31, 2025.

Is Canadian Solar a bankable company?

Canadian Solar is one of the most bankable companies in the solar and renewable energy industry, having been publicly listed on the NASDAQ since 2006. For additional information about the Company, follow Canadian Solar on LinkedIn or visit About e-STORAGE.

Can Bess reduce the spread of fire between energy storage units?

Josh Dinaburg, Fire Test Specialist at CSA Group, commented, "Key stakeholders in the energy storage industry have raised justifiable concerns about the ability of BESS to limit the spread of fire between units without relying on complex extinguishing systems or putting first responders at risk.
